Advice: We are IREB® Recognized Training Provider 2021

In this foundation level seminar, you learn the most important requirements terms, which is the basis for every software development. Recent studies show that 50% of all projects are delayed or fail due to incorrect and incomplete requirements. Therefore, it is necessary to identify and determine requirements to ensure successful results.

We address the most important processes and methods, which will help you identify, collect, document, verify and manage requirements. We guide you through the verification and validation phase, in which gaps and inconsistencies become quickly obvious. The more planned, efficient and effective the requirements management, the better the results.

All our trainers have many years of experience in the field of requirements engineering, and have a track record as consultants in small and big projects.
